Final Issue

February, 2011

Dear Citizens,

Three years have passed since ground was broken in 2007 on the new Wolcott Treatment Plant on Sam Clark Lane in Wyandotte County. It was a busy period as WaterOne worked to complete this large project on schedule. The new plant was brought on-line in 2010 and an Open House and Dedication were held to showcase the innovative features that were incorporated into the facility.

The new treatment facility is the most visible sign of the expansion project; however, there were other related projects equally important. Most significant was the installation of a 17-mile 60" transmission main. This project impacted many residents along the pipeline route and required a great deal of support from those who experienced first-hand what is involved in installing a large pipeline.

WaterOne thanks the many residents, businesses and community leaders throughout Wyandotte County that were cooperative partners with us during this challenging expansion project. The project would not have been possible without your support. To those individuals that were inconvenienced by the construction process of both the new treatment facility and the pipeline, we are profoundly grateful for your forbearance and extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

During the construction of these projects, WaterOne has issued periodic updates in the form of the Mainstream newsletter. We are pleased to share photos of the project and dedication in this final issue. As these photos attest, great things can be accomplished in the spirit of cooperation when citizens and government work together.

With Deep Appreciation,
WaterOne Board and Staff
